

Unit, Personal & Family Readiness Program Policy

UNIT READINESS BEGINS WITH PERSONAL AND FAMILY READINESS. Unit, personal, and family readiness directly correlates to mission accomplishment and our success. To that end, we pledge to “take care of our own,” and this includes taking care of our Stinger families.

Personal and family readiness is an integral part of ensuring we meet our operational goals. I am committed to ensuring that HMLA-267 provides family support to Marines and Sailors, spouses, children, their parents, and extended families. The Stinger Command Team serves as my primary communication link between the command and our families. The Uniformed Readiness Coordinator (URC) and our Deployment Readiness Coordinator (DRC) are my trusted agents on family support matters, and they possess a wealth of knowledge to help you and your families find any information or resources you may need.

Every level of leadership at HMLA-267 is responsible for educating our Marines and Sailors on the family readiness program and the resources available to them for their benefit. Knowing our Marines and their families and looking out for their welfare is a fundamental principle of leadership. Family readiness is not a distraction from our focus on mission accomplishment. Rather, the Family Readiness Program enables us to build a tight-knit team that can overcome any challenge or obstacle we encounter.

I encourage all family members to play an active role in our squadron by becoming involved with HMLA-267’s outreach events. Family involvement in a Marine or Sailor’s career enriches the fabric of our Stinger Family and contributes to our shared success.

For additional support and information, reference MCO 1754.9B and/or see the Stinger Uniformed Readiness Coordinator, Captain Jessica Huguelet, jessica.huguelet@usmc.mil or our Deployment Readiness Coordinator, Ms. Dannielle Maxwell (858) 837-1801, dannielle.maxwell@usmc.mil.

Lieutenant Colonel D. R. Howe
Commanding Officer, Marine Light Attack Helicopter Squadron 267

Anytime. Anywhere.