

Welcome to HMLAT-303

Welcome to HMLAT-303! We are happy that you are a part of the Atlas Family. The Marine Corps previously utilized Family Readiness Officers (FRO) for many years. In the past this position was filled by a full-time civilian employee. Currently, our squadron Uniformed Readiness Coordinator (URC) is a collateral duty for an active duty officer, whose primary duty is to serve as an Instructor Pilot. We also have a civilian Deployment Readiness Coordinator (DRC) assigned to our squadron to assist with the Family Readiness Program. She was previously a FRO for over 10 years and is an excellent resource.

Here at Atlas, the URC's mission is to ensure that Marines and family members have knowledge of, and access to, all of the resources available to them through the Marine Corps, MCCS, and our community. I am assisted in my duties by Family Readiness Volunteers, whose contributions to the squadron are vital. There are various volunteer opportunities throughout the year, and everyone is encouraged to participate.

The Atlas family routinely hosts recreational activities, including the Beach Bash, Family Day, Christmas Party, and Easter and Halloween events. These activities are open to all and we hope that you will take advantage of the various opportunities to become involved in the Atlas Family.

My main form of communication is email. This allows me to reach as many of our squadron families as possible with information regarding resources, events, and activities. Please send me any updates to email addresses so I can ensure information is properly disseminated.

I am here for the Marines and Families of HMLAT-303 and I look forward to serving and working with you all. Please do not hesitate to contact me.
